

In a nuclear power station, steam is used to drive the turbines which in turn drive the generators.