

Thermal energy is transferred from the hot end to the cold end of a metal bar because of collisions between neighbouring