

When components are joined in parallel in a circuit, the potential difference across each component is