

Biofuels are considered to be carbon neutral because the carbon dioxide released when they are burned, was stored in the plants by photosynthesis.