

Electrical energy is transmitted through the National Grid at a low voltage to reduce the current.