Nuclear power stations generate electricity using the energy given out when or fuels break up through nuclear fission	on.